PHILIP HAWKINS, & Co.

It has been stated, in some late Publications in your Paper, that a great Confidence, that many of our Inhabitants have a Design to copy after the New-Yorkers, and, in order to elude and break through the general Agreement of the Colonies, have proposed to contest the Non-importation to the several Articles, on which Duties are laid, viz. Tea, Wine, Rum, Sugar, Molasses, &c.

I am persuaded, that these Insinuations are altogether without Foundation. The New-Yorkers themselves, I can assert upon good Authority, begin to repent, and be ashamed of their late Conduct, and acknowledge, that their acting so precipitately, has been wholly owing to the Party Feuds that rage so violently amongst them.

However specious this Scheme may appear at first View, as it seems to encounter the whole Duty-act, yet, when it comes to be well considered, it will be found not only absurd and inadequate to the End proposed in it, but highly injurious to the commercial Interest of this Province, as it has a direct Tendency to destroy the most valuable Branches of our Trade, particularly that to the foreign Islands. This is the most profitable Part of our Commerce, and the great Source of our Wealth; and the Loss of it must immediately lessen our Shipping, and of Course considerably affect the Ship-carpenters, and all other Tradesmen, employed in fitting out Vessels to Sea. Besides, if we refuse to take off the Commodities of these Islands, they cannot purchase ours, which must then perish on our Hands, or be transported to Markets, perhaps, already too much glutted.

The Non-importation of Wine, Rum, Sugar, Molasses, &c. would deprive Numbers of our People of Employment, would be injurious to the Farmers, destroy our Distilleries and Sugar-Houses, lessen the Business of our Coopers, and, in a Manner, ruin our Draymen and Porters, whose Livelihood greatly depends on the Transportation of these bulky Commodities from the Vessels to the Stores, and from one Part of the City to another. The Waggoners too, and Shallop-men from every Part of the Province, must suffer, as they would thereby lose a large Part of their Back-carriage. I cannot help thinking, that the Interest and Liberty of these useful and numerous Bodies of People (full as dear to them as their own is to the wealthiest Importers of Dry Goods) ought not to be entirely slighted and disregarded.

This Proposal is also idle and absurd, because it can no Way affect the English Merchant, or Manufacturer, who were our ablest Advocates in the Case of the Stamp-act: Nor can we, by such feeble Efforts, have the least Prospect of settling the Liberties of America on a firm Basis, or of preserving to ourselves the sacred Right of giving our own Money. Without this, we shall have no farther Use for Assemblies, and our Persons and Property will be liable to the Caprice and Tyranny of every rapacious Minister, who will laugh us to Scorn, if our only Resource be, the preventing the Importation of Commodities, none of which are the Produce of Britain, and which, whether we use them, or not, must be altogether a Matter of Moonshine to them.

The Dry-Goods Merchants, of all People, have the least Reason to complain of the Non-importation, as they have reaped greater Advantages by it than any other Set of Men. They have disposed of far the greatest Part of their Goods, which had long remained in their Stores, at an advanced Price; have received in their Debts at a low Exchange; and, consequently, have thereby had a double Profit.

The Province has, during the Non-importation, increased more in Wealth than it ever did, in any equal Space of Time, since its first Settlement. We have, in a Manner, got rid of the great Load of Debt to Britain; and, was the Agreement to continue, should, in a Year, or two, have more due to us from that Quarter than ever we owed them. The Balance of our Trade is much in our Favour; Money flows in from every Side; and Economy and Frugality, with many useful Manufactures, begin to raise their Heads amongst us. And are all these Advantages to be sacrificed to the forlorn Third of Gain in a few Importers of English Goods, who may really be said to live on the Labour of the industrious Farmer and Tradesman? The Pennsylvanians have ever had the Character of a People prudent and cautious, but, at the same Time, steady and firm to their Agreements, and this, our Agent, Mr. Franklin, has repeatedly assured the People of England, the Ministry and Merchants, that we are justly entitled to. But, should these selfish Importers have Influence enough to carry their Point, how would this Character be forfeited! We should become a By-word amongst the Provinces, and be justly ranked with the faithless New-Yorkers and Rhode-Islandmen. With what Face can we go into their Measure, when, but the other Day, at a general Meeting of both Town and Country, we unanimously resolved, that the New-Yorkers had, as much as in them lay, given up the Liberties of America; when we have driven away from our Ports the shameless Rhode-Islanders, and resolved, in the most public Manner, to have no Intercourse with either of these Faith-breaking Provinces? And shall we now be guilty of the same base Treachery for which we so justly condemned them? I would fain think better of the Consistency of Conduct and Principles of my Countrymen. It is, and must be impossible, while we have the least Regard to Liberty or Virtue, that we can be guilty of so base and monstrous a Conduct. Should we be induced, by the artful Insinuations of these Importers, to break the general Agreement and Union of the Colonies, we should be justly exposed to the Reproach and Contempt of those illustrious Patriots, who are our Friends in Britain, and of every Lover of Liberty in America, and would entail, on this hitherto respectable Province, such a Character of wanton Folly and Treachery, as would hardly be effaced by Length of Time. Rouse then, and be on your Guard my dear Countrymen, if you prize the Blessings of Liberty, and abhor Slavery; for, on your Resolutions, at this important Crisis, it will, in a great Measure, depend, whether the one or the other is to be the Portion of yourselves and your Posterity. Scorn to be deluded by the false and deceitful Pretences of Men, who are only influenced by the most selfish and unworthy Motives; of Men, who, by their vast Importations, formerly had impoverished the Country, and reduced it almost to the Brink of Ruin, from which the salutary Effects of the Non-importation Agreement have but just rescued it. Let us only look back to our Condition a few Years past, when our Lands were taken in Execution for our Debts, and sold by the Sheriff at public Sale, such was the Scarcity of Money, and so great was the Poverty of our Inhabitants, that few, very few, could afford to buy, and, of consequence, they did not yield Half their real Value. Our Goals were then filled with the unhappy Delinquents, and their miserable Wives and Children left exposed to all the Horrors of Pauper and Famine. And to such a Situation should we, I fear, be soon again reduced, were the proposed Importation to take Place. I would not here be understood to charge the Body of Dry-Goods Merchants with an injurious, or selfish Conduct; far be such an Opinion from me.

To their everlasting Honour be it said, that the greatest Part of them have shown much public Spirit, and have been as zealous to preserve the Liberties of their Country as any Set of Men in the Province, by foregoing their private Interest on every Occasion, where it was necessary; and I question not, but they will cheerfully act up to these Principles, whenever the Good of their Country requires it of them. But, in the most unblemished flock, there may be a few scabby Sheep, which it may require great Care and Attention to keep from infecting the Red.

I can, with the greatest Truth, affirm, that a Regard to the Honour, Reputation, Interest, and Liberty of my Country, has been my sole Motive to say this much.

A PENNSYLVANIAN.

We hear the following Ships are coming out from England, with Commodore Gambier, for North-America, the Salisbury, the Gibraltar, the Kennington, the Zephyr, and the Spy.

A Gentleman at Newport writes, that a Vessel from Carolina, bound to Swaney, passed that Place last Friday, and informed that off Sandy-Hook they spoke with the Tweed Frigate bound to New-York; having on board the new Governor of that Province.

On the 1st Instant his Excellency Brigadier Carlton, Governor of the Province of Quebec, embarked from thence for London, on board the Ship Quebec.

NEWPORT, (Rhode-Island) SEPTEMBER 10. At a Meeting of the Corporation of the College in this Colony, held at Providence, last Wednesday, the Hon. Stephen Hopkins, Esq; was chosen Chancellor, Job Benner, Esq; Treasurer; and Dr. Thomas Eyer, Secretary of the College.

About a Fortnight past arrived at Portsmouth, in New-Hampshire, Capt. Holland, who is employed by the Government at Home to take Surveys of the Sea-Coast on this Continent. He has already been employed about two Years in this Service, and is now bound to the Southward.

Last Monday Se'night Captain Burrough, in the Sloop Four-Brothers, belonging to Providence, sailed from this Port for the West-Indies. On Tuesday Night following, in Lat. 40, about 5. from Block-Island, the Vessel was discovered to be almost full of Water, and soon sunk, the Captain and People having but just Time to save themselves in the Boat, without Compaiss or Provisions. They had been 4 Days in the Boat, when they made the middle of Long-Island, where they landed, from whence they arrived here last Friday Morning.

We hear the Soldiers at Castle-William, in Massachusetts-Bay, die very fast.

NEWBERN, (in North-Carolina) SEPTEMBER 7.

By several Accounts from New-York, we are advised of the disagreeable State to which the People of that City are reduced; Quarrels and Mobes are continual in the Streets, and the opposite Tempers and Sentiments of the Supporters and Violators keep the City in such a constant Fever, that nothing but Tar and Feathers is able to remove; this sovereign Remedy is always kept in Readiness by the Sons of LIBERTY, for the Benefit of their apostate Brothers the shameful Violators; to which is sometimes added, when that Remedy is likely to fail, the Ducking Stool.

While the neighbouring Colonies, and even our neighbouring Towns in this Province, have been loud in forming and entering into Associations for Non-importation, this Town has been quite silent on the important Subject; which, to our Neighbours, might seem a tacit Confession of our Lukewarmness in this momentary Business, wherein, we may now clearly perceive, intirely hinges American Liberty: But such has been the patriotic Spirit prevailing in this Town, that at this Day all the Merchants here cannot produce, for Sale, a single Yard of Osnaburghs, Negro Cloth, coarse Linens, or scarcely any European Goods at all; and we don't know any thing that would now more embarrass a Gentleman, than to be able to furnish himself with a Suit of Cloaths complete from all the Stores in Town; but to crown and complete this noble Spirit, the whole Town cannot now furnish a single Pound of Bohea Tea, that useless and destructive Plant, which has so universally spread its baneful Influence throughout all America. It is true, indeed, that European Goods are expected in here in the Fall, but we are authorized from the Importers themselves to say, that not a single Article but what comes strictly within the Purview of the Virginia Association, will arrive among us.

LONDON, JULY 24.

THE Grand Council of Dantzick having sent a Secretary to the Prussian Resident, to desire him to use his good offices with the King his master to get his troops withdrawn as soon as possible, the Resident made answer, "That he had a long list of grievances and insults which had been committed, as well towards his Prussian Majesty himself, as towards his subjects; and that the troops in question would not retire till he had received full and ample satisfaction." The Council, as soon as they were informed of this answer, dispatched a Secretary to all the foreign ministers, to desire them, on the part of the three orders of the city of Dantzick, to write to their respective courts, and intreat them to intercede with the King of Prussia on behalf of the said city.

The Prussian troops which have entered the Dantzick territory, consist of three regiments, two of infantry, and one of hussars.

A letter from Paris, dated the 15th instant, says, "The grand deputation from the parliament, composed of 43 persons, went on Tuesday morning to Versailles, where the President Lomington addressed the King, and delivered the representations agreed on by the chambers assembled; to which his Majesty made this reply: "After the arrest which you issued the 2d of this month, and which I have annulled, it cannot be expected that I should listen to your representations. I will not suffer the least delay or infringement in the execution of my letters patent of the 27th of June; and I forbid you, under pain of disobedience, to demur or put any obstacle to the Duke d'Anguillon's using amongst you the rights and prerogatives of prerogative."

The Right Hon. Hans Stanley, Esq; Member for Southampton, is appointed Vice-Admiral of the Isle of Wight.

"His now confidentially said, Lord Northington has failed of his intended negotiations, in consequence of which, the following removes are to be made.

The Earl of Rochford desires to retire upon his former pension, given by the late King.

The Earl of Halifax will be Secretary of State, and the Duke of Grafton, Privy Seal.

Sir Edward Hawke will be created a Peer, and the Earl of Sandwich succeed to the Admiralty.

Lord Pelham, or Mr. Shelly, will succeed to the Post-Office, and Lord Charles Spencer have his Staff again.

The Earl of Harcourt is to be Governor to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

Lord Stormont Ambassador to France.

And the Right Hon. Lord Palmerston, Envoy Extraordinary to the Court of Vienna.

A worthy member of the Court of Common Council intends, we hear, at their next meeting, to make a motion, that the names of the Jurors on the two late trials of Millar and Baldwin, should be put up in gold letters on each side of the clock in Guildhall, introduced by a few lines to commemorate that important day, and do lasting honour to such respectable members of the community.

We hear that the intended survey of the Dock-yards, men of war, and royal arsenals, which was to have been made this summer by the Lords of the Admiralty, is postponed, on account of proper returns having been made to the satisfaction of their lordships.

By letters from Constantinople of the 2d past, it is acknowledged, that Navarino had surrendered to the Russians, and that the garrison have since been transported, in English ships, to the island of Candia, to which island likewise 400 Turkish families had taken the opportunity to retire for their greater safety.

The Prussian detachment that has invested Dantzick, suffer no person to quit that city without a passport, for which they are obliged to apply to the Prussian Resident, and to pay one or two florins, or more, each, to have it made out. Over and above this, the farmers who have horses, are charged two florins per head, and a florin for every cart, at the different Prussian posts which they at present occupy.

When his Royal Highness the Bishop of Osnaburgh attains his age of 21 years, he will have a sum of near 700,000l. to receive from his guardians, at Prince Bishop of the said see.

Accounts from Portugal inform, that the conspiracies there are chiefly owing to the clergy, who have, for some time, entertained an opinion, that his most faithful Majesty has, from his youth, been inclined to favour the Protestants.

By letters from New-York, received yesterday, we hear, that the inhabitants of that place are now come to a resolution of receiving all imports from England, that are not liable to taxation, provided the Bostonians will concur in the same measure.

It is agreed on all hands, that one of the patriotic Sheriffs Townsend or Sawbridge, will be elected Lord Mayor for the year ensuing.

Can a ministry have the consummate effrontery to say, amidst their speculations for fine-cures and pensions, the Board of Green Cloth building a royal mansion, and lavishing thousands on embellishing gardens---that government cannot afford to coin silver and copper, the want of which millions of subjects groan under, because a small difference in the value of the metal comes in competition with it. It is a downright mockery of these terrible calamities.

By the silence of the letters by the Lisbon Mail, respecting the execution of the Monks, &c. there, it is supposed to be an invention to answer some particular purposes.

JULY 26. When the Premier met Lord Northington at court, he told him, "Old friend, you'll be offered the Seals." That may be, (replied furly Bob) but I'll be d---d if they make any impression.

The common business of America, in the absence of Lord Hillsborough, who is going to Ireland on his own private affairs, will devolve on a gentleman belonging to the Plantation Office, who is to have the advice and assistance of Governor Bernard.

An affair that has lately happened at Versailles has made much noise. Lady Molineux, now at that court, went to pay a visit to Madam Barré. While she was there, the King came in. On his entrance her ladyship rose up to depart; but his Majesty intreated her to stay, and was, after some conversation, so charmed with her person and wit, that it is reported he made a declaration of his passion; his affection, however, since this visit, is entirely alienated from Madam Barré. How this affair will end is at present uncertain.

Commodore Gambier, it is said, will sail immediately for America, to relieve Commodore Hood. The frequent councils that have been held for the four last weeks, it is whispered, were on the present state of his Majesty's province of the Massachusetts-Bay; for it is certain, several gentlemen well acquainted with the affairs of that country, were summoned to attend. The result of these deliberations is not yet fully known, but time will soon discover it. It is shrewdly conjectured, that the Squadron for the American station, now at Portsmouth, will rendezvous at Boston, instead of Halifax; and that the provincial forts, hitherto maintained by their own assembly, will be, in future, occupied by the King's forces; in particular, that Castle-William, situated on an island which commands the entrance into Boston harbour, will be garrisoned with a thousand regular troops.

Sir Edward Hawke is certainly to go out, and to have a peerage. He is so severely afflicted with a diarrhoea that he cannot attend public business, nor does his misfortune give him an opportunity to retire into the closet.

Some say, his successor is not yet fixed; but a part of the administration still give out, that the Duke of Grafton will be the man.

By the latest accounts from Hamburgh, it is observed, that Prussian recruiting parties swarm every where for 40 miles round; and that the greatest preparations are making in that city for the reception of their Danish Majesties, who are soon expected there in their way to pay their respects to their mother, the Princess Dowager of Wales.

The money received at the ports of Cadiz and Lisbon for fish, flour, and Indian corn, and lately in the ports of France for the two last, on account of the great devastation which the floods have made in many provinces of that country, has actually been returned to the merchants in America in specie, which used to center here for British Manufactures.

Yesterday the Earl of Chatham arrived in town from Hayes, and after paying visits to several of the nobility, returned in the evening to Hayes.

From the most intimate knowledge of, and enquiry at the public offices, we are assured there is not, at present, the least appearance of an approaching war with any foreign power.

We are assured, notwithstanding any reports to the contrary, that there will not be the least change in any part of the Administration, during the recess of Parliament.

The late Premier's Secretary, we hear, on finding he is to retire from public business, complains bitterly of the scantiness of his provision by the pension lately granted him of 1500l. per ann. as the emoluments of office were worth above double that sum to him, and he has accordingly begun to retrench his expenses by preparing to leave his great house, which was taken for the purpose of holding levees, &c.

The expediency of having a sufficient number of sailors at home to man a fleet in case of emergency, has been canvassed in the Privy Council several times; and 'tis resolved, it is said, to man several ships now in commission, with their full complement of men; to be draughted off to any other ships on occasion.

A new bank, we hear, is shortly to be established by Sir Robert Ladbroke and company, which is to be fixed on more lucrative principles for the money-lenders of any bank in England. Persons who make lodgements having two per cent. interest, after three days from the date of depositing.

JULY 28. Yesterday was held a Court of Common Council at the Guildhall of this City, when a great variety of business was dispatched. The Orphan Bill was twice read, and the London Workhouse Bill passed. After the King's answer to the late address of the city to his Majesty on the birth of a Prince had been read, it was moved that the answer should be entered in the city books, on which Mr. Alderman Wilkes said, "that if the entering the King's answer among the city records, meant any thing more than the bare recording that historical fact, that on such day his Majesty gave such an answer to the city's address, if it implied the slightest degree of approbation, he would oppose the motion; for he thought the answer contained a cruel and unjust suspicion of the loyalty of the city of London; that it was exceedingly ill-timed and uncourteously to affront the citizens, at the instant of their coming in the warmth of their hearts to congratulate their Sovereign on the increase of the royal family; but that however he should never ascribe so obnoxious a measure to the King, but to those Ministers who sought our ruin, who had planned the scheme for the shedding of innocent blood in St. George's Fields, and from the first moment of their power had constantly and sedulously endeavoured to create dissensions between the King and his people, and particularly the loyal inhabitants of this great capital, to serve their private abandoned and wicked purposes." The answer of his Majesty was entered with only the date of the year, and the day of the month.

The two following motions passed in the Court of Common Council:

"That the conduct of the Recorder of this city be taken into consideration at the next Court of Common Council, and that the Lord Mayor be desired to order notice of it to be inserted in the summonses.

"That the oath taken by the Recorder on his admission into office be forthwith printed and sent to every Member of this Court."

The answer of the Earl of Chatham to the compliments of that Court was also read, and ordered to be recorded.

Letters from Paris say, that a memorial has just appeared there, maintaining, "that the Princes and Peers also, over whom the King presides, actually form the Court of Peers, witho-the concurrence either of the Parliament or of the Civilians." The Duke d'Aiguillon's party are taking great pains to introduce this innovation; which even the Chancellor seems not disinclined to favour.

The last letters from Vienna advise, that the Emperor is making great preparations for the reception of the King of Prussia next September, at the Camp in Moravia; which on this occasion is to make a most splendid appearance. These letters add, that the Imperial Court and that of Versailles are exerting their endeavours to bring about a reconciliation between the Turks and the Russians.

Orders, it is said, are given for apartments to be fitted up at St. James's, for the reception of the Princess of Brunswick, who is expected to come to England with her Royal Mother.

On Wednesday John Wilkes, Esq; Alderman of Farringdon Ward Without, was chosen Master of the Joiners Company for the year ensuing; he was afterwards elegantly entertained by the Court of Assistants, at their hall in Thames-street.

There is one circumstance which reflects no little honour on the Earl of Northampton, in his late negotiation with the Administration; and that is, his lordship failed of success, not as some others had done before him, for asking too much for himself, (for he asked nothing at all) but for asking too much for his country—the greatest crime a man can be guilty of in the present ministerial situation of affairs!

Extract of a letter from Portsmouth, July 27.

"This morning between four and five o'clock, a fire broke out at the upper-end of the Laying-house in the Dock-yard, and notwithstanding all the officers and men of the yard, it communicated itself to the Spinning-house, the great Hemp-house, Carpenters-shops, and Little Mast-house, all which buildings are entirely consumed, with the greatest part of the stores which they contained, consisting of about two or three hundred tons of hemp, a large quantity of pitch, tar, fails, cables, rigging, and masts, with all the timber which lay near the said buildings. Such a dreadful conflagration was never seen by any man living. The fire still rages with great violence, but as the wind is favourable, it is hoped it will not extend its devastation any farther."

It is remarkable, that the Premier's father was appointed Tutor to a great perage in the year 1750, and that his son is, at this time, his PRECEPTOR in 1770.

PORTSMOUTH, July 18. On Monday last was held at this place, a Court Martial on board the Centaur man of war, to enquire into the cause of the loss of his Majesty's ship Jamaica, on the Coleradoes, near the West end of Cuba, on the 27th of January; when, after a strict enquiry, it appearing that the officers had not been guilty of any neglect, they were honourably acquitted.

COPENHAGEN, June 23. The court had ordered two men of war and some transports with troops on board to go to the island of Bornholm, to bring the inhabitants to their duty, they having refused to pay the capitulation, and to submit to some other regulations, under a pretence that they were an infringement upon their privileges; but the departure of these forces is set aside.

Father Sainowicz, an Hungarian Jesuit, and one of the astronomers who observed in the north the passage of Venus over the disk of the Sun, has written a book in Latin, tending to prove that the language of the Laplanders is the same as the Hungarian language. This discovery he made by residing 15 months in Lapland.

ROCHFORD, July 3. The last letters from St. Domingo confirm, that the members of the Sovereign Council of Port-au-Prince arrived there the 22d of March last; that the President Mr. Grefier, the King's Attorney Mr. Leger, and Messrs. Macel, Chambrun, Jovier, and Jousse, Counsellors, are kept prisoners, and guarded by six fusiliers; that the other Counsellors, Messrs. de Longpre, le Tort, du Fourge, and Magnolles, are under arrest at their own houses. These letters add, that Dutrees, who was sent to France by order of the General as an evidence against those Magistrates, was discovered to be a rascal, who charged the members of the Council with crimes that they were not guilty of, and abused the confidence of the Chevalier de Rohan; in consequence of which he was sent back to St. Domingo, to be punished as his crimes deserve.

VIENNA, July 7. We expect every moment to hear of a decisive battle between the Russians, commanded by General Romanzow, and the Turkish grand army, commanded by the Grand Vizir.

PARIS, July 13. A camp is to be formed in the neighbourhood of Metz, consisting of 25 or 30,000 men, under the command of Marshal D'Armentieres.

ORANTO, June 24. They write from the Morea, that the Russian squadron, consisting of 11 ships, commanded by Commodore Elphinston, arrived in the Gulph of Pagania, near Mystra; and that after having been reinforced by several more Russian ships of war, had put to sea, attacked and beat the Ottoman fleet under Giaffer Bei, and sunk three of his ships.

HAGUE, July 22. There are letters here which assure, that the Russians are actually bombarding Bender.

TRIESTE, June 27. All the Morea is in possession of the Russians, except two fortresses, which must soon surrender, as they are in want of provisions, and the Russian troops guard all the passages by which the enemy might convey them any by land; whilst on the sea-side every resource is cut off by the good luck which 18 ships of the Russian squadron have had, to block up in port 13 Turkish vessels, commanded by Zafir Bey, which were going to their assistance, and which are so effectually penned up, that it is thought they must all surrender or perish.

HAGUE, July 19. The differences which have for some time subsisted between the States General and the Elector Palatine, are quite adjusted; in consequence of which their High Mightinesses have this day opened the trade again with the subjects of his Electoral Highness, and have given their own subjects leave to trade up the Rhine.

country, about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, of a pretty black complexion, speaks tolerable English, not very thick, sup-

Whoever takes up any or all of the above SLAVES, and delivers them to the warden of the Work-house in Charles-in Craven county, shall receive TEN POUNDS currency reward for each, and reasonable charges.
